Workshop Series 2009

Introduction to Literature Searching

Presented by Mrs Katrina Dewis

The start of every project usually involves looking for information on the subject at hand. This can involve journal articles, peer-reviewed literature, reference books, online libraries and many other sources. It can be a little daunting for researchers just starting out in their field. This hour long course aims to introduce you to the many resources out there as well as show you how to go about sifting through the information gathered and evaluating the results of your search to get the relevant data and discard the dross. The course will be conducted by Mrs Katrina Dewis, a librarian at the UTAS Clinical Library.
